Bonneville Pacific trustee Roger Segal has given Salt Lake Mayor Deedee Corradini until Aug. 3 to make an overdue $24,000 payment to him or she could face $613,000 in penalties and the loss of her home.

After the Deseret News contacted Corradini's attorneys Thursday, her attorney, Kim Wilson, called Segal's office to say Corradini would make the required payment by Aug. 3, said Vern Hopkinson, attorney for Segal.

Corradini is three weeks late in making a $23,858.28 payment to Segal. The debt was overdue on July 1 and began accumulating 12 percent interest, he said. With interest, the mayor now owes $24,000, he said.

Segal sent Corradini a "notice to cure default" letter on July 3, giving her 30 days to pay the overdue debt. Until Thursday morning, Segal had not heard from Corradini or her husband, Yan Ross.

A Corradini spokesman said the mayor considers the 30 days a "grace period."

Director says zoo is making corrections

But Humane Society calls for Farnsworth's removal and maximum penalties.

By Douglas D. Palmer
Deseret News staff writer

Each incident cited in a civil, administrative complaint filed against Hogle Zoo "was addressed and was corrected or is being corrected as quickly as possible," zoo director LaMar Farnsworth says.

Farnsworth made the statement in response to a complaint filed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture against the zoo, charging that the facility violated the federal Animal Welfare Act in 11 specific incidents.

But the Humane Society of U.S. is calling for the removal of Farnsworth and other zoo administrators and is pushing for maximum penalties.

Allegations range from claims that the zoo had dirty facilities, broken fences, to charges that it caused the deaths of two giraffes and two gazelles.

The complaint, filed by the USDA general counsel's office with the Office of the Hearing Clerk of the federal agency, could result — if the zoo is found guilty of the charges — in big fines and temporary or permanent suspension of its license. Filing of the complaint followed a long investigation by USDA inspectors of many animal deaths and other problems at the zoo, which is operated by the private Utah Zoological Society. Most of the high-profile animal deaths that have occurred at the zoo in recent years
